Drenched in the sultry sounds of rich tones, elegant phrasing, and vocal versatility, musician/singer/songwriter, Tammi Brown, is a unique talent in music.

Influenced at the tender age of 4, Tammi quickly found her musical roots in the soulfulness of Gospel music while singing, playing organ, and directing the choir in church. Her musical roots blossomed when she discovered the vocal gracefulness of Ella Fitzgerald, the rawness of Aretha Franklin, and the power of Chaka Khan.

Tammi was struck by the heartbreaking loss of her mother at an early age. She embraced her Gospel roots for healing, remembering the whispering songs her mother sang to her as a child. Through the pain of losing her Mother and the challenges of life itself, Tammi found peace in God and the healing power of music.

Naturally, Tammi continued to sing using her vocal versatility to spread her musical wings with some of the industries best-known artist: She is currently a vocalist in the two-time Grammy Award nominated Vocal Ensemble (Cultural Heritage Choir) led by the Legendary, Linda Tillery. Tammi also received an invitation by legendary Jazz guitarist, Stanley Jordan, to sing background vocals for the tune "Steppin' Out" on his record State of Nature, which received a 51st Grammy Award nomination. In addition, she had the divine opportunity to sing the 'Opening Song' for the legendary Renaissance Poet, Dr. Maya Angelou at the Santa Cruz Civil Auditorium, then again, at The Historic Arlington Theatre in Santa Barbara, California.

Tammi's blessings continued as she opened for legendary folk singer Joan Baez at Esalen's 50th Celebration concert in Big Sur, California. In that same year, she performed background vocals for world-renowned Blues Artist, Eric Bibb on his "Jericho Road" recording project. She co-produced her single "That's How it Goes" along with 13-time Grammy nominated Jazz Fusion artist, Tom Schuman of Spyro Gyra,

Tammi has performed with many of the Industry's most note-worthy musicians; her musical journey has taken her to many stages in over 10 countries that include solo performances at the famous Apollo Theater in New York City, The Monterey Jazz Festival, and European venues scheduled for Fall 2016!

Tammi has received glowing testimonials and references from artists such as Stanley Jordan, Linda Tillery, George Benson, and Tom Schuman to name a few.
